

Oneness Love

You do not hear much about LOVE in the discussions of management philosophy

Do you know what love is?

Not that of romantic love I mean

But the wholesome act of nurturing oneself for the betterment of all

A rupture of self-boundaries for the growth of others

An extension of self and not self- sacrifice

It enlarges instead of diminishes

It enriches rather than impoverishes

Love is separateness in togetherness!

Never a trade of bondage for the price of freedom

Love recognizes separate identities

It respects unique individualities

Love - the fuel, the energy, the motive for discipline

It demands effectiveness in any given situation

Love is judicious giving and judicious withholding

It is judicious praising and judicious reprimanding

Feeling of love may be unbound

Capacity to love is limited

Time, energy and attention are needed

Suffuse our genuine love first to those within bound

Love knows no sex, race, religions nor identity

It is intentional rather than emotional

Unconditional love tastes the sweetest

The gift of love excels all gifts

- Stanley Cham