

Stanley's Top 12 Personal Values

by Stanley Cham

1. I Respect Every Individual As They Are - I respect individuals' value systems. It is never my life philosophy to impose my values into others. Likewise, I expect those with whom I interact respect this top life value of mine. When I perceive that the person whom I interact fails to respect this top life value of mine, I will still respect them as they are and I will, where possible, distant myself from them. I will, on the other hand, attempt at my level best to reach out to those who I felt is ready for my values.
2. I Value Freedom of Operation - As an adult, I know exactly what I want for my life. I will only do what I am passionate to do. I am absolutely responsible for my life. I am responsible for my own 'Success'. I respect those who respect this value of mine more
3. I Value Friendship and Harmony in Togetherness – No man is an island. In human interaction, I value friendship; living in harmony with one another and with the nature
4. I Value Happiness - My vision is to live a 24-hour of happiness everyday of my life for the rest of my life irrespective on my life circumstances. I will distant or discard those who may consistently jeopardize this value of mine
5. I Value Holistic Growth – I have a strong faith in myself and I strive to have a balance growth in these few key areas of my life - physical, intellectual, emotionally, spiritual and financial
6. I Value in Helping People Growth in Character and Wisdom – To me, the purpose in life is in the growth of character and wisdom. I believe in reaching out to those who are ready for me to reach out and distant myself from those who are not
7. I Value Harmonious Communication - 'To err is human.' I certainly make mistakes along my journey of life. Through mistakes, I progress more by encouragements than by condemnation or criticism. I treasure mature one-to-one feedback for growth.
8. I Value Transparency – I believe in human interaction, I need to be transparent with people. It is through transparency, people are in a better position to choose to befriend me or otherwise. Three important check-points before I disclose myself to a person are: 1. Is it the truth? 2. Is it my responsibility? 3. Will it bring good to the other party and to me?
9. I Value Leveraging – Everyone is born a genius, we are bestowed with our own uniqueness, characteristic and talents. Through leveraging and synergistic effects, each of us shall ultimately excel in our own chosen way, positively or negatively.
10. I Resent Threat of Any Kind – Threat of any kind leads me to live in fear and jeopardize my flow of positive energy. I take heed only on the nature's life threatening threat which meant to help me to growth and progress further in life.
11. I value Peacefulness and Calmness – We are living in a hectic environment. I value quite moments by myself and for myself for I believe it is in such moments of peacefulness and calmness, invaluable creativity surfaces and ideas flow

12. I Value Specialization – I cannot be everything to everybody, neither I can be something to everybody and I surely can be something to some of the people. I believe in the current environment of abundant choices, specialists rather than generalists are the command of the day.
